

CANADA-EUROPE TRANSATLANTIC DIALOGUE: SEEKING TRANSNATIONAL SOLUTIONS TO 21ST CENTURY PROBLEMS
www.canada-europe-dialogue.ca

EXTERNAL COLLABORATORS (EUROPE)

Lorand Bartels (University of Cambridge)

Lorand Bartels is University Lecturer in International Law and Fellow of Trinity Hall at the University of Cambridge and a leading expert in the EU on legal aspects of regional trade agreements. He is the author of Human Rights Conditionality in the EU's International Agreements (OUP, 2005) and the co-editor of Regional Trade Agreements and the WTO Legal System (OUP, 2006). Recently, he has also been advising the African, Caribbean and Pacific countries in their negotiations on new Economic Partnership Agreements with the EU. Dr. Bartels is a regular visitor to Canada, involved in SSHRC-funded research with Armand de Mestral.

Arthur Benz (Technische Universität Darmstadt)

Arthur Benz is Professor of Political Science at the Technische Universität Darmstadt, Germany. His research work focuses on comparative federalism and European multilevel governance. In 2007/2008 he was a research scholar at Carleton University in Ottawa and he will continue his collaboration with Canadians in his research on democracy and multilevel governance in Canada and the EU.

Thomas Christiansen (European Institute of Public Administration)

Thomas Christiansen is Professor in Political Science at Maastricht University and also holds positions at the European Institute of Public Administration in Maastricht and at the College of Europe in Bruges. He is Executive Editor of the Journal of European Integration and has published widely on different aspects of EU politics. From 2000 to 2003 he was the lead European partner in a European-Canadian Transatlantic Consortium on Multilevel Governance, Federalism and European Integration sponsored by HRDC/European Commission (involving UVic, Carleton, and McGill). He contributes to the Governance theme of the Cluster.

Renaud Dehousse (Institut d'Études Politiques de Paris)

Renaud Dehousse is a Jean Monnet Professor at the Paris Political Studies Institute (Sciences Po) and Director of its European Institute. He has been a consultant for several European Union offices. His research work focuses on comparative federalism and the institutional evolution of the EU and most recently on governance transformation in the European Union and also on the Court of Justice. He contributes to the Governance theme of the Cluster in relation to comparative federalism.

Jørgen Elklit (University of Aarhus)

Jørgen Elklit is Professor of Political Science at the University of Aarhus in Denmark. His research work relates to political participation and he is the author of a recent book on the subject in Denmark as well as a paper titled "Why is Turnout Not Declining in Denmark." He does consulting work with Cluster partner International IDEA on electoral institutions and practices in various countries. He works with Cluster collaborator Lawrence LeDuc and participant Jon Pammett on research regarding ways to maintain or increase political and electoral participation.

Thomas Faist (University of Bielefeld)

Thomas Faist is Professor in the Department of Sociology at Bielefeld University in Germany and the Director of the Center on Migration, Citizenship and Development (COMCAD). He is one of Germany's leading specialists in research on migration, ethnic relations and transnationalization. His current research focuses on transnational social policy and on environmental degradation and forced migration. Having spent a one year fellowship at the University of Toronto, he will continue his involvement in the Immigration/Citizenship thematic group in the Cluster.

Danica Fink-Hafner (University of Ljubljana)

Danica Fink-Hafner is Professor of political parties, interest groups and policy analysis in the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana; she is also Head of the Centre for Political Science and Research as well as Head of Master's studies in Policy analysis – European Aspects in the same faculty. Her main research interests include the transition to democracy, political parties, interest groups, policy analysis, EU policy-making and the Europeanisation of national political systems and public policies.

John Erik Fossum (University of Oslo)

John Erik Fossum is professor in Political Science at ARENA Centre for European Studies at the University of Oslo, Norway. He is past substitute coordinator for the 5th framework program Citizenship and Democratic Legitimacy (CIDEL) and present substitute coordinator for the 5-year, 6th framework program Reconstituting Democracy in Europe (RECON). He is also vice-president of the Nordic Association for Canadian Studies (NACS). He has published widely on democracy, federalism, constitutionalism, citizenship and identity in the European Union and Canada.

Stefan Gänzle (German Development Institute)

Stefan Gänzle is Senior Researcher at the German Development Institute in Bonn. Between 2004 and 2008, he was Visiting Assistant Professor (DAAD) at the University of British Columbia. His research interests lie in the field of European integration, EU foreign policy and global governance. He has been a research fellow at the University of Jena (1999-2004), the European University Institute (EUSSIRF program) in Florence (2001) and a researcher-in-residence at the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) in Prague (2001). His most recent book (co-edited with Guido Müntel and Evgeny Vinokurov) is Adapting to European Integration? Kaliningrad, Russia and the European Union, Manchester University Press, 2008. He has published in International Journal, Conflict and Cooperation, Critical Approaches to Discourse Analysis across Disciplines (CADAAD), Défense Nationale and Aus Politik und Zeitgeschichte.

Andrew Geddes (University of Sheffield)

Andrew Geddes (Sheffield, UK) is one of Europe's leading experts on immigration politics in the EU. He has collaborated with participants in the Immigration/Citizenship theme of the Cluster in the past (conferences, publications, and workshops with Randall Hansen) and is committed to continuing this collaboration.

Maria Golubeva (Centre for Public Policy PROVIDUS)

Maria Golubeva (Centre for Public Policy PROVIDUS, Riga) is involved in ongoing collaboration with the Cluster dealing with the Immigration/Citizenship theme in the New Member States, in particular issues of participation and citizenship regarding minority groups in Europe.

Mitja Hafner-Fink (University of Ljubljana)

Mitja Hafner-Fink is Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Ljubljana. He participates in the design and implementation of the International Social Survey Program (ISSP) through the Public Opinion and Mass Communication research centre at his university. Carleton researchers have collaborated with him for several years through the ISSP, particularly in relation to development of an ISSP module on citizenship.

Hansjörg Herr (Berlin School of Economics)

Hansjörg Herr is a trained economist from Berlin, Germany, who has published widely on currency theories and policies, in particular on the Euro and the European Central Bank. He is the co-director of the Institute for Global Macroeconomics at the Berlin School for Economics. He has co-authored a book on currency policies with Kurt Hübner.

Alicia Hinarejos (University of Cambridge)

Alicia Hinarejos is a University Lecturer in Law and a Fellow of Downing College, Cambridge. Before coming to Cambridge, she was an Assistant Professor at McGill University (2009-11). She had previously been a British Academy Postdoctoral Fellow (Faculty of Law, University of Oxford) and a William Golding Junior Research Fellow (Brasenose College and Institute of European and Comparative Law, Oxford). During 2008-09, she was a Max Weber Visiting Fellow at the European University Institute. Dr Hinarejos holds a DPhil from Oxford, where she also received an MPhil and an MJur in European and Comparative Law, both with distinction. She is a member of the Spanish Bar.

Helmut Hubel (Friedrich Schiller University)

Helmut Hubel holds the Chair of Foreign Policy and International Relations at the Friedrich Schiller University of Jena, Germany. Dr. Hubel has published extensively on EU-Russian relations and the Eastern enlargement of the EU and has collaborated with Cluster scholars at Carleton and UBC (joint publications, conferences) in the thematic area dealing with new foreign policy challenges arising out of EU enlargement.

Markus Kaim (German Institute for International and Security Affairs)

Markus Kaim (German Institute for International Politics and Security, Berlin) focuses his research on trans-Atlantic security relations; Canada-EU relations; security and defence policy of the EU; and US and Canadian foreign policy. He participated in a policy workshop organized by the Cluster in June 2006 and is keen to continue his joint work with Canadian scholars.

Franz Kernic (University of Innsbruck)

Franz Kernic is Professor of Sociology at the Swedish National Defence College in Stockholm. He is also a senior fellow at the Austrian Ministry of Defence (on leave) and an associate professor at the University of Innsbruck. His research concerns European security policy, the nature of the EU as an international actor, trans-Atlantic relations and public opinion and European security. In 2005 and from January 2007 until April 2008 he taught at Carleton University and participated in the cluster theme on new foreign policy challenges. Jointly with Professor David Long, Dr. Kernic organized a conference on “Transatlantic Relations and International Conflict Management” held at Carleton University on February 7-8, 2008.

Anand Menon (University of Birmingham)

Anand Menon is Professor of West European Politics at the University of Birmingham. He has written widely on European politics, the European Union and European security. His most recent book is Europe: The State of the Union, Atlantic Books, 2008. He is a frequent contributor to the Financial Times and various other media outlets.

Bruno Palier (Institut d'Études Politiques de Paris)

Bruno Palier is CNRS Researcher at Sciences Po Cevipof (Centre de recherches politiques de Sciences Po). Trained in social science, he has a PhD in Political science and is a former student of Ecole Normale Supérieure. He is studying welfare reforms in Europe and is currently conducting a comparative project on the politics of welfare reforms in Continental Europe. He was Visiting Scholar at Northwestern University (Spring quarter 2007), at the Center for European Studies at Harvard University in 2001 and Jean Monnet Fellow in the European University Institute in Florence in 1998-1999. He is currently the scientific coordinator of a European Network of excellence RECOWE (Reconciling Work and Welfare, involving 29 European research institutions or universities and 190 researchers from 19 European countries).

Philippe Pochet (European Trade Union Institute)

Philippe Pochet is the General Director of the ETUI. He was Director of the Observatoire social européen and has lectured at the Catholic University of Louvain (UCL). He is an affiliate of the Centre of European Studies at the ULB (Free University of Brussels) and the Digest Editor of the Journal of European Social Policy (Sage). His research focuses on European monetary integration, the social dialogue, social policy, employment issues, and the open method of coordination. Philippe Pochet comes to Canada on a regular basis to consult with Canadian colleagues on these issues, particularly through the Montreal/McGill Centre.

Karin Schittenhelm (University of Siegen)

Karin Schittenhelm represents the network of the study groups in migration and integration studies funded by the German Volkswagen Foundation with whom Cluster scholars collaborate through Oliver Schmidtke of the University of Victoria. Schittenhelm is a leading researcher in the area of international, comparative research on the labour market integration of immigrants.

Ingeborg Tömmel (University of Osnabrück)

Ingeborg Tömmel is a Professor of Political Science and Jean Monnet Chair in European Politics at the University of Osnabrueck, Germany. Her research focuses on governance, policy-making and system-building in the EU. She spent the 2005-06 year at the University of Victoria on a John G. Diefenbaker Award (Canada Council for the Arts). She collaborates in the Transatlantic Research group with Amy Verdun and Michelle Egan.

Jan Winter (Free University, Amsterdam)

Jan Winter is Senior Professor of EU Law, Free University of Amsterdam. He first distinguished himself with seminal work on the central concepts of direct application and direct effect of EC law. He is a leading authority in Europe on the law of state aid, government procurement and EU competition law, and has frequently been sent by the European Commission to lecture on admission to the EU in Central Europe. A frequent visitor to Canada, he has taught at McGill University, is involved in SSHRC funded research with Armand de Mestral and has written comparative articles on the Canadian and EU constitutions in cooperation with de Mestral.